The Justin.tv

In 2007, Justin Kan and his three coworkers Michael Seibel, Emmett Shear, and Kyle Vogt created their own YouTube channel, Justin.tv. The basic idea was to develop a video sharing platform; in other words, his goal was to develop what is now referred to as vlogs, or online videos. The world may watch him explore new places and learn about the uncharted using a webcam attached to his head. Justin.tv rose in celebrity status, almost in lockstep with his devoted fans.

After being more familiar with how the corporate world operates, Justin Kan later differentiated his contents. The channel's content now includes social media, technology, sports, and video games. Later, he created an exclusive gaming-related component that is now known as Twitch.tv. Read below to find out about the justin kan net worth.
